

2nd Annual Rachel Carson Legacy Conference

Green Chemistry: Solutions for a Healthy Economy

Saturday, September 20, 2008
8 AM – 5 PM (lunch included)
Powers Conference Center
Duquesne University

Advance registration required
Registration fee: $25*

Go to Rachel Carson Homestead website and follow directions to register.
www.rachelcarsonhomestead.org

Who should attend? Anyone interested in learning about how green chemistry, the chemistry of minimizing waste and reducing the use of environmentally unfriendly reagents, is used in making profitable new products to make the world a better place

Why come to this seminar? This event features a combination of big-name speakers—including Paul Anastas, the founder of green chemistry--representing both universities and local Pittsburgh industries in a 1-day program. The program includes representatives of all four of the Pittsburgh-area universities and companies which have received EPA Green Chemistry Challenge Awards. (See reverse side of this sheet for detailed event agenda.)

SACP (nonstudent) members who attend will receive a $10 rebate on the registration fee plus a parking sticker for the Forbes Avenue garage (given out by Susan Zawacky during lunch or a break). Please notify Susan Z of your plan to attend by e-mail when you register for the conference.
